

Shooting scene

The Crack Bar in Bay St. Louis was the scene Friday night of the shooting of an off-duty Waveland policeman Joe Jushaway. Russell Nichols, a 27-year-old black male, is being held in Hancock County Jail in connection with the shooting.

Waveland policeman shot at lounge

A Waveland auxiliary off duty policeman was shot between five and seven times Friday night following an argument with another black male outside the Krack Bar Lounge in Bay St. Louis, Miss.

The man, Joe Lewis Jushaway, 32, of 507 Morris St., Waveland, Miss., was pronounced dead at Gulfport Memorial Hospital less than 24 hours after the shooting.

Police said Russell Nichols, 27, of 418 Sycamore St., Bay St. Louis, arrested at the scene early Saturday morning and charged with assault and battery with a deadly weapon, would be recharged with murder. Nichols was confined in the Hancock County jail without bond Saturday.

Bay St. Louis patrolman Wilbert Dorsey who arrested Nichols at the lounge said he was on a routine patrol of the area in his police car when he passed the Krack Lounge and heard shots being fired.

Dorsey said that when he got out of his car and investigated he saw Jushaway lying wounded on the ground and Nichols running around in shock.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief William Carbonette said that no gun had been recovered yet but that a search of the parking lot area was being continued. Nichols told police that he threw the pistol he used to shoot Jushaway into the grass.

Police said that the pistol was believed to have been a .22 automatic and was reportedly emptied into Jushaway. One bullet was reportedly fired into the victim's temple.

Carbonette said details of the shooting were still being pieced together Saturday, but that Jushaway reportedly became involved in an argument with Nichols concerning an arrest of Nichols for a drug charge recently.

Patrolman Dorsey said that Nichols submitted to arrest peacefully at the scene where he was handcuffed and brought to the Hancock County Jail.

Mobile Medic Ambulance service transported the victim to Hancock General before transferring him to Gulfport Memorial Hospital.

Jushaway, the son-in-law of Bay St. Louis assistant chief of police Douglas Williams, leaves a wife and four children.

Mayors to poll Aldermen

Both the Pass Christian and the Long Beach city councils are expected to endorse the DuPont Company's proposed plant site north of the Bay of St. Louis. Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier and Mayor Sam Maxwell of Long Beach both said they would poll their aldermen by telephone since neither city has a city council meeting scheduled before the public hearing December 30 at 7 p.m. at the Westside Community Center in Gulfport.

Officials of the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission said that the hearing will consider the waste treatment and disposal methods of the proposed DuPont pigments plant north of the Bay of St. Louis. The state commission said that the hearing will not consider discharges into the air.

Hancock ridership survey remains currently vague

Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County officials said Friday that they could not at this time interpret ridership figures released by the Mississippi Coast Transit Authority last week for a three day period of free bus service in Hancock County. The figures showed that approximately 1,300 persons rode the MCTA buses during the no-fare period Dec. 12, 13 and 14.

The experiment was proffered to city and county officials by MCTA director Col. Tom Morris to show off the transit authority's bus service and to determine the need for a mass transit system in the Hancock area.

Waveland Mayor John Longo described the daily average of 450 riders as being "well-represented." Preliminary figures, Longo said, appeared to show that "quite a few people are interested" in a mass transit service. Longo added, however, that he was not sure if a bus service would be financially feasible with an average ridership of 450 people. Longo said no one from MCTA had contacted him so far about the feasibility of establishing the bus service permanently in Hancock County.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Warren Carver said that he had not had time to study the MCTA figures but expressed interest in having MCTA interpret the results.

Hancock County supervisor Jimmy Travira said he was also unable to evaluate the ridership figures because it was difficult to separate those who would actually use the service from those who rode the bus just to see what it was like.

Morris said earlier last week that he was pleased with the ridership figures, echoing his previous statements to the three entities that the free no-fare period would demonstrate public interest in extending the MCTA service to the Hancock County area.

The service is presently operating in the Gulfport-Biloxi area with plans to extend the service to the Pass Christian-Long Beach area in the early part of January.

Board wants out

Waveland to vote fate of separate school district

Waveland mayor John Longo said Friday that he had received no adverse criticism yet from any Waveland citizen about the board of aldermen's decision to set a special election next Jan. 11 to decide if the city should withdraw from the Bay St. Louis School District.

The board voted unanimously to call the special election at its regular meeting last Wednesday night after apparently feeling that a growing controversy with the city of Bay St. Louis over management of the school district could not be settled any other way.

Commenting on the resolution, Longo said that since the public schools were something that involves all the voters, the voters should be given the opportunity to express themselves on how they feel.

Longo said that under the present situation the city of Bay St. Louis has approximately 180 percent out of 200 percent representation.

"I think the school board can understand our position," Longo said.

"All the people in Waveland do. They know we are being taxed without representation."

Waveland has one member on the present five-member school board with Bay St. Louis controlling the other four seats. During a meeting with members of the Bay St. Louis council last week, Longo tried unsuccessfully to obtain a second seat for Waveland on the board. The second seat would have required a voluntary resignation of one of the present Bay St. Louis members since state law presently only provides for five members. None of the Bay St. Louis members offered to resign his seat.

Asked if he thought the board would try to block Waveland's secession, Longo said they would be foolish if they did try.

"We voted ourselves in and we can vote ourselves out," Longo said. "We joined by motion - not by referendum," but Longo added, "We wanted to get the people of Waveland's reaction first."

Under the present situation the city of Waveland has no control over the taxation levied for the Bay-Waveland school district. That taxation is determined by Commissioner of Finance, Clarence Ladner, with the Bay St. Louis city council.

Differences between the two cities surfaced during adoption of the 1974-75 school board budget. Longo indicated that it was far too high and included various items which could have been eliminated. He succeeded in getting the school board to withdraw a capital expenditure of $30,300.

However, the board came back later and asked the Bay City Council for authority to borrow the money. Commissioners Clarence Ladner and Lucien Kidd went along with the proposal. Mayor Warren Carver voted yes only after an agreement that an election on the proposal be called if enough registered voters signed petitions calling for one.

Waveland collected more than 1,500 voter signatures on a petition, but failed to get an election called after Kidd purged over 375 names as being invalid or illegal.

Longo said that if Waveland does establish its own separate school district, the city would do so without any increase in taxes or bonds.

There are presently around 521 school age children in the Waveland area that attend school either at one of the two Waveland elementary schools or Bay St. Louis high school.

Longo said the city of Waveland's assessed valuation was presently $8,500,000 and would probably increase to $10 million in 1975 with added improvements.

"We have more than enough millage here to educate the children of Waveland," Longo said.

Cajun humor

Chamber to honor Spences

The Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce will honor Mr. and Mrs. Cary E. Spence of Spence's Station for 37 years of continuous operation in Pass Christian with a reception from 2-4 p.m. Monday at the service station.

This will also mark the Spence's retirement from business. Their friends and members of the chamber are invited to stop by during the afternoon for refreshments.

Dr. C.D. Taylor, Jr. will serve as master of ceremonies for the brief presentations. Russell Ringer, president of the chamber, will express congratulations on behalf of the chamber, and Mayor Steve Saucier will represent the city of Pass Christian. Officials from the Standard Oil Company and Greyhound Bus Lines are expected to attend.

Refreshments and decorations are being planned by Mrs. Rory Rafferty and Mrs. Woody Waggoner.

The reception will also serve to introduce Marvin and Allen Barksdale, the new proprietors of the station.

After the first of the year, the Barksdales will move from the Texaco station and begin operating the Chevron station on Scenic Drive and Davis Avenue.

Reminder to report

Troy A. Adams, Jr. of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service stated that aliens in the United States will be required to report their addresses to the Attorney General within the near future.

All aliens (with few exceptions) who are in the United States on January 1, must report their addresses each year by the end of that month.

Forms with which to make the report can be obtained from any post office or Immigration and Naturalization Service Office during January.

Adams said that the law provides severe penalties for failure to comply with the reporting requirements.

In a variation from its "business as usual" atmosphere, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce had fun Thursday night at Bay-Waveland Yacht Club as members sat back and enjoyed the humor of the Reverend John Laughlin better known as "Big John-the Cajun."

Afterwards in the only actual business, the chamber announced the election of seven new directors who at the next meeting will name the officers for the coming year.

Special awards were presented to Mrs. Anita Lamb, for her work on preparing a new area brochure; Fred Logan for outstanding achievement in the drive for new members; State Senator Martin Smith, "for assistance when needed, particularly his help in getting the hospitality center on I-10"; and Nicholas Haas, president, for his service in 1974.

In a pre-dinner address, Haas declared 1974 a banner year for Hancock County.

"While the rest of the nation has been slipping, sliding, and floundering," Haas said, "Hancock County has been on the move."

The good signs are all around, Haas said, pointing to an economic boom for Hancock County.

"It's thrilling to be an American," Haas said, "it's great being a Mississippian - but most of all," he added, "it's going to be exciting, prosperous and challenging to be a Hancock Countian."

The seven directors named for the coming year are: J.P. Compretta, Don Moore, Ms. Jeannette Monti, Sonny Bailey, Mrs. Anita Lamb, Fred Logan, and Mrs. Nell Frisbie.

Chamber elects directors, presents special awards

Number 1,001

Mr. and Mrs. J.P. Pokrasky of Kingman, Arizona received a special accolade from the city of Waveland Thursday after being the 1,001 person to stop at the Waveland Hospitality Center on U. S. Highway 90 outside of Waveland, Miss. The couple, who said they were very impressed with the hospitality they had received on the Gulf Coast, were enroute to Inverness, Fla. Making the presentation to the Pokraskys were senior citizen hostesses Mrs. Gordon Gleim, center, and Mrs. Helen Wills, right. The Hospitality station opened last August 25.

Stennis calls for investigation of cost hikes

"Consumers are the helpless victims of circumstances beyond their control, and they are entitled to the assurance that the Congress and the Administration are working to solve the problem."

These were the words of Senator John C. Stennis as he addressed himself to the skyrocketing prices of sugar during a Senate speech. "Many of the people I talk to are in a state of shock," Stennis said. "They just don't understand how such prices can be permitted and why the Congress and the President seem to be powerless to take effective action."

Scotland reverses migration trend

GLASGOW — For the first time in 40 years, more people are migrating to Scotland than are leaving, according to Secretary William Ross. Latest estimates showed a net gain of about 5,000 compared with a loss last year of 10,000.

number of factors have contributed to the tremendous increase in the price of sugar over the past year." Admitting that inflation "has played a major role," Stennis was quick to point out, however, that "some of the sugar companies seem to be reaping profits far beyond that which could be considered fair and reasonable."

The Mississippi Senator called on the Attorney General of the United States "to investigate fully any possible anti-trust violations by those who control the sugar market and sugar prices. I sincerely hope that no stone will be left unturned."

Stennis said that "it has been impossible to determine up to now whether there has been an unlawful manipulation of the previously unregulated commodities market. The Mississippi Senator said that "there are just too many unknowns in the present situation, including the role of speculators in the commodity market."

Predicting that "some of them (speculators) might be in for a rude awakening when all the facts are known," Stennis expressed encouragement that "Congress has approved legislation bringing this commodity exchange under regulation along with other commodity markets." The President signed the legislation into law October 23, 1974.

Stennis said the present circumstances are compounded by the fact that historically the "United States has been unable to produce enough sugar to meet our domestic needs" while until relatively recently "there was more sugar produced worldwide than was needed."

However, in the "past four years, the consumption of sugar has outstripped production on a worldwide basis," according to Stennis. "With this accelerating world demand," Stennis said, "crop failures in the United States will force us to import an estimated 51 percent of our sugar this year." This is up from the normal 45 percent, he continued.

Stennis concluded that "the permanent answer to this question is to increase production of sugar in the United States." According to Stennis all indications are that "world consumption will continue very high," and "we can no longer count on foreign producers to furnish a major portion of our needs at reasonable prices."

The veteran lawmaker urged both the Council on Wage and Price Stability and a House Agriculture Subcommittee to complete their investigation as rapidly as possible. Armed with these facts, Stennis said the Congress could then "explore

Ross addresses retirees meeting

"We can't borrow ourselves out of debt," Jim Buck Ross, commissioner of agriculture for Mississippi, told members of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees at their meeting held at

Diamondhead Country Club on December 19th. He blamed our present dilemma on three things - irresponsible fiscal policy by the federal government, the energy crisis, and the grain crop failure in the Mid-West. He told the group that we have had only six balanced budgets in the past 45 years and that we must return to the basic principles that made this country great - honesty, integrity, thrift and patriotism.

Joe T. Reilly, state president of the federation, was an official guest at the meeting and he told of plans being made for the State Convention to be held in Greenville, Miss. in May 1975. Woody Owen, president of the local chapter, said the next meeting will be held at the Knight's of Columbus Hall, 733 34th Street, Gulfport, Miss. and that pictures taken by delegates at the National Convention held in Portland, Oregon would be shown.

Miss. Library Commission Announces Staff Changes

In recent action taken by the Board of Commissioners of the Mississippi Library Commission, Jack Mulkey was appointed assistant director of administrative services, while Tom Jaques was named assistant director of library development, it was announced by Miss Mary Love, Mississippi Library Commission director.

Jaques, MLC personnel consultant prior to his appointment as assistant director, received his Bachelor of Arts and Master of Library Science degrees from Louisiana State University. Before joining the MLC staff, he had served as coordinating librarian and assistant director for the Rapides Parish Library in Alexandria.

As assistant director of library development, the Louisiana native will work toward further development of libraries and library systems throughout the state, and will supervise MLC's construction, institutions and special services departments. Jaques and his wife Trudy are parents of two sons, and live at 1320 Winterview in Jackson.

Also a native of Louisiana, Mulkey, former management and administrative consultant, graduated from Centenary College of Louisiana with a Bachelor of Arts degree and earned his Master of Library Science degree from Louisiana State University. Mulkey was also the recipient of a Rotary International Foundation Graduate Fellowship for advanced study at the University of Dijon, Dijon, France, and the Duke University Law Fellowship.

Prior to his position with the Mississippi Library Commission, he served as director of the Green Gold Library System of Northwest Louisiana, Shreveport.

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

INTRODUCING THE 94TH

If you think the 93rd Congress has given you some cheap thrills over the last two years, just wait until you meet the 94th Congress.

"The next two years could make the Lyndon Johnson Great Society look like kindergarten stuff," one of my House colleagues told his constituents recently. And, judging from the makeup of the new Congress, he could be right.

After all, when you give that group of liberals more power than they already have, you're really asking for trouble.

Let's take a brief look at the numbers game in the 94th Congress. When we convene in January, Democrats will control the House by more than a two-thirds majority (291-144) and the Senate by a smaller but still substantial margin (52-38).

The group of liberal Democrats lost no time flexing their muscle in the House. This element literally ran away with a reform program in the recent reorganization sessions of the Democratic Caucus.

As a sign of things to come, they rudely unseated House Doorkeeper William "Fishbait" Miller of Pascagoula. Fishbait has introduced dignitaries with the words "Mistah Speakah" for as long as most people can remember.

Now, thanks to the "new look" Democrats, Fishbait will be forced to retire.

Another disturbing target of the reformers is the makeup of the House committees which deal with money.

The Ways and Means Committee and the Appropriations Committee will take on a drastically different character in January.

The liberals are quick to point out that the two powerful committees, which handle most of the legislation pertinent to the current economic crisis, have for years been chaired by conservatives. The time has come, they say, for a change in leadership.

So, out goes Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, who has more problems than he can handle at the moment. In steps Congressman Al Ullman of Oregon, a House veteran and an established liberal.

Then, to make sure that the right people have the power to make committee assignments, the Democratic Caucus retrieved that power from Ways and Means and gave it to the Steering and Policy Committee. They now will make committee assignments for members of their party.

Looking at the makeup from another angle, only four House chairmen retired. Their successors will come from a similar age group.

"King Caucus" has been moving in other areas, such as increasing the number of days a bill may be put on the Suspension Calendar, thereby limiting debate. They are also pushing tax reform and welfare reform, neither of which is designed to help the working American.

All in all, as you can see, it should be an interesting two years.

County Agent's Notes

MANAGE GRAZING

Complete grazing off all frosted grass this month as digestibility drops to about 25 percent. The cows will need protein and energy supplements to make most efficient use of the frosted grass.

Cold weather has delayed growth of late October and November planted ryegrass. Grazing these too soon will reduce your winter forage production.

Control grazing to get the most from your grass. As little as one hour a day grazing will help stretch your pastures.

Protect young clover from grazing so that it will give production in late February and early March. Where clover is planted with ryegrass, do not allow the grass to shade out the clover.

DRAINAGE IS IMPORTANT

Fields that contain potholes or stay wet always cause problems in planting on time, cultivating on time and making precision applications of herbicides to control weeds. Here are some suggestions that may help.

Grade fields to the desired slope either by land forming or disking and planning so that water moves off at a reasonable rate.

Soils that have poor internal drainage, such as heavy clays, should be rowed up in the fall so that the beds will have good surface drainage in the spring. Plowing in the fall will also permit these soils to mellow through wetting and drying, freezing and thawing through the winter. Don't plow fields that are subject to severe erosion.

Clean all drainage ditches and be sure that field ditches are open into tributary ditches and that tributary ditches open into main channels.

These are not the only things you can do to improve water management, but they will help keep your tractors and shoes out of the mud next spring.

LIME FOR SOYBEANS

Even on rented land, a ton of lime per acre will pay for itself the first year if applied early enough. One out of four soybean acres has a pH of less than 5.6. Liming land this acid will result in increases of 7 to 10 bushels per acre. This means that a short term lease is no excuse for not applying lime, if it is needed.

CUT FEED COSTS

You can help cut the costs of wintering the beef herd by separating the cows with calves from the dry cows. Cows with calves need more feed and it is wasteful to feed dry cows more than they need. Also, separate first calf heifers from older cows. They require more feed and more timid at the feed bunk.

Santa gets Headstart on Christmas

Santa shakes hands with Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier at Santa's Headstart on Christmas last Thursday while the children look on. On the other side of Santa is Pass Christian Police Chief Edward Alley.

Last Thursday Santa Claus made a command appearance at Father Sweeney's Headstart Center in Pass Christian. Escorted by Fire Chief George Mixon, Santa stepped cautiously through the main hall until he reached the corner where he was mobbed and hugged by over 100 three, four, and five-year-olds.

Santa's visit may have been a surprise to the children, but to the parents and friends of the center, the visit was the culmination of 83 working hours in preparation for the event.

Mrs. Rosa Whitlock, coordinator and head teacher at the center, said, "I want to thank the parents and interested citizens who worked very diligently the last four days for this Christmas program." Headstart officers Christmas program came from Headstart funds as well as donations from interested persons and the Les Dames Club of Bay St. Louis.

The Headstart Center, which has four full-time teachers and an enrollment of 105 pre-schoolers, teaches children how to interact with others. For the more advanced children, the program provides basic learning situations.

Interest deductions mean monthly savings

The reduction from 9.5 to 9 percent in the maximum allowable interest rates on GI and FHA home loans could mean as much as $9.90 per month savings to the average veteran home buyer, Ralph H. Martin, Loan Guaranty Officer of the Jackson VA Center, said this week.

Over the 30 year life of the average $27,500 GI loan, the total saving from the .5 percent reduction would be as much as $3,564, Martin pointed out.

The reduction, effective November 25, was announced concurrently with Housing and Urban Development on November 22.

The new 9 percent rate resulted from the second reduction this year and it followed four successive increases which took the rate from 8.25 percent in January to 9.5 percent as of August 14 where it remained until the current reduction.

Getting goodies

Santa Claus seemed to just go everywhere last week as he visited children everywhere he could find them. Here young people from the Bay St. Louis Headstart Center at St. Rose DeLima School in Bay St. Louis found Santa waiting to give them a sack of goodies and toys while they informed him of their Christmas lists. Headstart workers also were on hand to give children cupcakes and refreshments on the last day of school.

Governor's Council to support kindergarten, stronger child abuse law

Authorization of a publicly supported kindergarten program and the strengthening of child abuse laws are two major proposals that the Mississippi Child Development Council, Governor's Office of Education and Training, will support during the upcoming legislative session. At its November meeting, the council voted to endorse the concept of a kindergarten program for the state's five-year-old children and to support Senate Bill 2172 which will clarify and expand the laws governing child abuse.

While not endorsing a specific kindergarten bill, the council agreed that a good public kindergarten program is badly needed in the state. Bills which would provide kindergarten programs through various funding processes have been pre-filed in both Houses of the Mississippi legislature. Kindergarten programs are presently in operation in 45 of the fifty United States and have been found to be significant factors in the development of basic learning and social skills in children. Studies of federally-funded kindergarten programs in Meridian and Natchez have shown that first-grade failure rates have dropped significantly and school readiness test scores have improved after the programs were begun.

Senate Bill 2172 pre-filed by Senators William Alexander of Cleveland, and Robert Logan of Lake will include mental abuse and sexual abuse in the definition of the term "battered child" as used in the law. It will require the Welfare Department to obtain judicial approval before removing a child from the custody of a parent or guardian, and will include psychologists, teachers, principals, social workers, child care workers, and ministers among those persons required to report child abuse. It will also provide for a penalty for failure to report and the option of rehabilitative treatment rather than imprisonment for convicted child abusers.

"Full consideration of this bill is very important," according to Miss Ruth Hubbell, Director of the State Child Development Program, "because the present lack of reporting of child abuse cases is the major deterrent to its treatment. It is also necessary that these changes be made in the law to enable Mississippi to obtain federal funds for child abuse programs."

Students Visit Gulf Research Laboratory

A group of students from North Central College near Chicago made a field trip to study the estuarine plants and animals surrounding the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory of Ocean Springs, Mississippi. Many of these nineteen students saw salt water, salt marshes and many species of coastal animal and plant life for the first time.

The students, accompanied by Doctors Terrence G. Marsh and Russell O. Hanson, left snowy Naperville, Ill., on Dec. 2 and traveled 1,000 miles by train and bus to the Coast. North Central College recently became an affiliate of the Gulf Research Laboratory.

Professor Marsh emphasized that this is not a "fun" field trip nor a vacation for these students, but a hard-working study course. The students are expected to keep journals, record their observations, collect samples and attend lectures given by the GORL staff. Their activities have included a tour to acquaint them with the research program and facilities of the Laboratory; boat trips to the barrier islands, inland bayous, bays and marshes to collect data.

For their efforts the students will receive a half course credit or approximately two semester hours in a special course, Estuarine Ecology, offered during the three-week interim term at North Central. They are mostly biology majors and they are experiencing an environment considerably different from their home states. The information students are obtaining from their studies is invaluable, Prof. Marsh noted.

The North Central group has been housed in the dormitory building at the Laboratory where they have been responsible for their own housekeeping as well as the preparation of their own meals.

The field trippers remained at GORL until December 16. They planned to take a short respite from their tough three weeks on the Gulf Coast by a visit to the French Quarter of New Orleans on their trip back to Illinois.

News From Parchman

Van R. Burnham III, 33, of Clarksville, has been named Public Relations Director of the Mississippi State Penitentiary according to Penitentiary Superintendent Jack K. Reed.

The new position under Reed's current administration was created mainly to help bridge the communication gap between Parchman and the outside world.

Upon announcing the appointment of Burnham, Reed said, "Apparently, much of the news that is written about us has been highly inaccurate and some of the news written are just plain untruths. Van Burnham's main responsibility will be to relate the news accurately, that is, 'tell it like it is'. All we really want is a fair shake."

Reed stated further, "There are definitely a lot of good things happening down here at Parchman. We have many fine programs which the majority of the public is totally unaware of such as our family visitation program, our work-release program, our 10 day Christmas leave program, and our conjugal visitation program which was the first one of its kind in modern day penitentiary reforms."

Burnham, who received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Journalism at the University of Mississippi in December of 1973, has been employed by the state institution since November 18, 1974 undergoing various orientation programs. He recently spent a week in Jackson visiting Charlie McKellar and Wayne Edwards, members of the governor's staff, who introduced Burnham to most of the news media in Jackson that he would be associated with in his new position.

"Although my experience in professional public relations may be lacking somewhat, I think, due to my past personal experiences, I know how to relate to people from most all walks of life and hope I will be successful with this new job."

Burnham also added jokingly, "I've heard for so long about how overcrowded the prison camps are, but the office space is just as bad. So far, I still can't find a vacant room in the administrative or security buildings that I can use for an office. Right now, I'm sort of working out of my pocket."

A coroner's jury found that Norval Lester Flake, 43, an inmate at Camp 8 in Lambert, died of probable heart failure. The prisoner, who died on December 13, was found by another inmate who reported to an officer that Flake had passed out. Flake was found lying in his bunk with apparently no vital signs. There were no apparent signs of foul play.

Flake, serving a 10 year sentence for the sale of controlled substances, was convicted in Harrison County and had been at Parchman since Lambert since July 18, 1974.

The latest attempted escape here at Parchman took place on December 17, 1974, but the two potential escapees never left the prison grounds, being apprehended by security officers while hiding in laundry baskets near Camp 4 where they resided.

The two men were identified as Hyatt Eugene Evans and Danny Cassidy. They were discovered missing shortly before 8:00 A.M. and were seized just prior to 11:00 A.M. Evans, 42, was serving a seven year sentence on one count of burglary and one count of possession of burglary tools. He was convicted in Harrison County and had been at Parchman since December of 1971.

Cassidy, 22, was convicted in Jones County for armed robbery and was serving a 15 year sentence. He arrived at Parchman on April 5, 1973.

The two men placed real to life looking dummies in their bunks and left the housing unit.

In charge of the apprehension of these inmates were Deputy Superintendent Robert Streif and Associate Superintendent and Chief of Security Colonel George Morgan. Since their arrival at the penitentiary in the last year, the number of prison escapes has decreased by almost 80 per cent.

The Mississippi State

Penitentiary recently purchased a brand new fire engine with all of the latest fire-fighting controls installed on it. The engine which cost approximately $48,200, made its first public appearance Friday at the Christmas parade in Drew.

Superintendent Jack K. Reed drove the fire engine in the parade and later remarked at its conclusion, "This thing rides smoother than my own car."

A new fire station will soon be opened that was built by inmates. Until its completion, the new fire engine is being kept at the security building.

The twin-engine plane makes the trip in one hour and 40 minutes and the smaller aircraft in two and one-half hours.

Lobsterman life isn't that easy

YARMOUTH BAR, Nova Scotia - The wind is howling, the autumn late afternoon clouds bespeak a rain before nightfall. All the same, 47-year-old Clifton Fevens is busy repairing his lobster pots.

The December to May lobster season is near and lobstering is his livelihood. He has been for 21 years and will be again this year - whether the fishing temperature be zero, worse or better.

Listening to Fevens' description of hunting lobsters in this North Atlantic area should be a required lesson for frequently complaining Pacific Coast tuna fishermen, some of whom as ordinary deckhands net $40,000 for less than four months' work in the balmy seas of the tropical Pacific.

It takes a good many years for the hundreds of lobstermen like Fevens to net $40,000, if they ever will. "We're just not in that kind of a situation," he said, laying down a hammer he was using to repair the wooden slats of one of thousands of lobster pots stacked along the shore of this fishing port in western Nova Scotia.

"It used to be that with $7,000 to $8,000 we could get our whole rig in order - boat, pots and everything. Now, a boat alone (they use 40- to 42-foot boats) costs more than $20,000, plus the pots, bait and all the rest."

"We also have two helpers on most boats and that means more division of the money we get for the lobsters."

The lobsters here crawl along the bottom at depths of from 12 to 180 feet and from close by shore to 15 miles out. Each boat is limited by law to 375 pots, and every pot must have an owner's tag, plus a buoy that identifies his fishing area in the waters around Yarmouth - also to warn other fishermen against pulling up somebody's else's pot. Fevens says some pots have yielded up to 20 lobsters, attracted by the salt herring or mackerel bait in the pot. "Herring is best," Fevens said, "but it sometimes is short because the Russians have been fishing it out around here." The Canadians now have put limits on herring catches - to save the fish and curb the Soviets.

Fevens says the older lobstermen fare pretty well but newcomers take a long time to learn the tricks of the trade.

Few Americans participate - "I think it's too tough for some of you people," Fevens said - but one or two U.S. draft dodgers have tried the work briefly, but failed.

'Taps' composed by a general

WASHINGTON - For 100 years, the bugle call "taps," whose melancholy notes are heard so frequently at American military cemeteries at home and abroad, has been part of Army regulations.

The haunting melody, officially adopted in 1874, is perhaps associated more with a burial, but it is also played to mark the lowering of the flag at the end of the day and later for "lights out."

While the Army's history office says that "a check with the U.S. Army Band, the National Archives and the Library of Congress indicates that the composer is not definitely known," Brig. Gen. Daniel Adams Butterfield is the man generally given credit for it.

Butterfield couldn't write a note, but he could whistle and hum a tune and had a remarkable ear for music. According to Oliver W. Norton, the general's bugler, in a letter to

Century magazine in 1898, Butterfield had an aide mark down the plaintive notes for what became known as the new taps on a staff, written in pencil on the back of an envelope.

That was in early July, 1862, more than a year before another famous work was produced on the back of an envelope, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

Norton said the general asked him to sound the notes on his bugle. "I did this several times, playing the music as written," he said. "He changed it somewhat, lengthening some notes and shortening others, but retaining the melody as he first gave it to me."

"After getting it to his satisfaction, he directed me to sound that call for taps thereafter in place of the regulation call."

The older taps, a regulation call, was also known as "extinguish lights," "Taptoo" and "Tattoo."

Norton, who was 22 at the time, sounded the new call that night as the Third Brigade, after desperately hard fighting in the peninsular campaign, was encamped on the Berkeley plantation, near the James River in Virginia. "The music was beautiful on that still summer night, and was heard far beyond the limits of our brigade," he said in his letter to Century.

"The next day I was visited by several buglers from neighboring brigades, asking for copies of the music, which I gladly furnished. I think no general order was issued from Army headquarters authorizing the substitution of this for the regulation call but, as each brigade commander exercised his own discretion in such minor matters, the call was gradually taken up all through the Army of the Potomac."

DATELINE WASHINGTON

Farmers gripe but live good

WASHINGTON — Last year the American farmer was whistling a happy tune. This year he's singing the blues.

The second Cadillac that he was able to afford in 1973 is either sitting in the barn or has been sold at a loss.

Farm income is down 20 per cent in the first half of 1974 and the farmer — like the butcher, the banker and the assembly line workers — is feeling the economic pinch. Things are tough all over but, to hear the farmers tell it, things are especially tough down on the farm.

A hungry world is crying for food and world food prices have never been higher. On the other hand, there is the spectacle of midwestern cattlemen threatening to kill cows because they cannot afford to raise them at today's high costs and shrinking market prices.

This seemingly massive discrepancy is explained by Agriculture Department officials as "due to worldwide inflation" and "market factors" or blamed by some commentators on "hikes on oil prices by the Arabs," "greed on the part of middlemen" or "ineptness on the part of Washington bureaucrats."

All of these explanations probably contain elements of accuracy.

It is also accurate to say that despite his singing the blues this year, the American farmer is not so bad off.

Prices which the American farmer received for his products in 1972 and 1973 were unusually high — the highest ever. Now costs are catching up and the farmer is caught in a squeeze.

Generally speaking, the American farmer has never had it so good. The outlook for the future is extremely bright: the world needs American farm products and farm technology. If the governmental controls on what the farmer produces and sells to customers abroad can be put on an even keel — and that is Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz' job — the American farmer can once again sport a second Cadillac, or maybe even a third.

There are 2,844,000 farms in the United States today, down from 3,963,000 in 1960. The demise of the small farm is actually part of the story of increased productivity and increased profitability of the American farmer.

The realized net income of American farmers in 1973 was $32.2 million, up from $17.5 million in 1972. The figure will slide somewhat this year due to inflated costs and a disrupted market, but the longer-term outlook is bullish because the potential production of the American farmer has barely been tapped.

Average cash receipts per farm last year amounted to $32,352, compared to $8,881 in 1960.

Government controls on farm production affect the farmer as they affect few other industries in the United States. The government has wrestled with the unique problem of adjusting production downward to be in line with utilization or market demand.

"There is a delicate balance among farm costs, prices for products and production levels that is either tuned finely or botched by government actions," said one Department of Agriculture official privately.

A recent report by the Committee for Economic Development (CED) entitled "A New U.S. Farm Policy for Changing World Food Needs" said that the contrast between present and past conditions under which farm policy has evolved is the reason for the ups and downs in prices of farm products in the last few years.

"In general," it said, "U.S. farm policies were designed against a background of chronic farm surpluses, and excess supply of farm labor, and substandard commodity farm incomes."

"Today, all of these conditions have changed."

The report noted that these surpluses had vanished over the last few years and that resulting price increases of farm products were mirrored in the consumer price index, which generates further price increases in other sectors.

State's Sawtimber Demand Is Down

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Forest owners in Mississippi have experienced a sharp decline in demand for sawtimber, reported Robert Parker, leader, forestry department, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

This drop in demand is greatly influenced by new housing starts, which are down to less than half the rate of a year ago. "Prime interest rates caused this decline. The increased prime interest rate of large financial institutions forced local loan associations to raise their interest rates for home loans, almost halting mortgages," explained Parker. "It will take about 3 million new homes per year over the next 10 years to meet projected demands. So far, we haven't reached an annual rate of 1.5 million in the past three years," he added.

Orders for sawtimber have already dropped 30 to 40 per cent, Parker reported. As a result, 5 to 10 per cent of the small mills in the state have shut down and may go out of business. Local mills have made drastic cutbacks in shifts because of this decline.

Not only are lumber mills being affected, but industries dealing with lumber products are also feeling the effects of the decline. For example, furniture companies that manufacture hardwood and pine products have been forced to reduce production.

Drugs and your health

by John F. Russell, M.D.

Just as a "rose is a rose is a rose" so a sedative is a sedative whether it is a barbiturate or a methaqualone.

Several years ago when the methaqualones were first introduced to the physicians, they were touted as non-addictive substances and everyone was happy. The physicians had worried over the addictive properties of barbiturates for years. Overdose of Barbs was also a favorite method for suicide and when mixed with alcohol they had a tendency to be lethal whether intentional or not. Thus, the medical profession breathed a sigh of relief and began to prescribe Quaaludes, Parets, Sopars and Somnifac in place of Amytal, Tuinal and Seconal. The "downer freaks" were also thrilled. They found the methaqualones gave an even more euphoric high than the barbiturates without the day after hangover found with barbs. The news that "Quales" were not supposed to be addictive spread quickly and soon the methaqualones were the no. 1 drug of choice by users of downers.

Then came the disquieting news: methaqualones were addictive just as much so as barbiturates and withdrawal was just as dangerous. One could not abruptly stop taking quaaludes anymore than he could stop Seconals. Either one, when abused for any length of time and then abruptly stopped could result in convulsions, coma and/or death. Both, when mixed with alcohol resulted in synergistic action or a geometric increase in effect so that overdose potential was equally great. Even worse, it was found that while the fatal dosage of methaqualones remained the same, tolerance did develop. So one had to take larger and larger amounts of the drug to get the same "feel". It was not long before the fatal dose and the "euphoric" dose became so dangerously close that a couple of drinks could tip the balance between life and death.

Finally, it was realized that we had another potentially dangerous abusive substance on our hands. Finally the methaqualones were placed under scheduled control so that one can no longer refill prescriptions, but must have a new script for each purchase.

Finally physicians are far less inclined to write a prescription for these sedative hypnotics than they once were when they were thought to be non-addictive. Finally, the abusers are finding it harder to come by a few quales or sopars.

Eventually the dangers will be known on the streets that quaaludes are addictive — that they have a tolerance, are physically and psychologically addictive. Eventually when enough downfreaks have tried to break the habit and find themselves in more trouble than the junkie they will learn the inherent dangers and the word will spread on the street. This is not a scare tactic. This is truth. ANY downer can be death! Withdrawal is more dangerous than from heroin!

Once again we must stress that taken as directed by a physician these methaqualones can be a boon to humanity. They do indeed give the patient a pleasant restful sleep from which he can be easily awakened, without a down "hangover" and with few side effects. Taken as directed, they are not addictive. Taken as directed, methaqualones live up to the ads! Abused, they are one of the most dangerous substances known to man.

Inquiries from readers can be sent directly to Dr. John F. Russell, 1202 Broad Avenue, Gulfport, Mississippi 39501.

New fuel will help keep U.S. warm

This year nearly 22 million fireplaces will be used in the United States, some as alternative heating devices, others, just for atmosphere and comfort.

A relatively new fuel, wax wood logs — made from industrial waste products, sawdust and paraffin — will account for nearly 25 per cent of the fuel burned in those fireplaces, according to estimates.

Miss Ladner wed to Mr. Indest

Miss Susan Marie Ladner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Ladner of Pearlinton, Miss., became the bride of Denis Joseph Indest II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Denis Joseph Indest Sr., of New Orleans at a Nuptial Mass December 14 at St. Joseph Catholic Church, Pearlinton.

Rev. Kenneth Brown, pastor, officiated at the afternoon double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with arrangements of poinsettia. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal empire style gown of candlelight crepe featuring a Victorian yoke of sheer Cluny lace with high neckline and full Bishop sleeves. The yoke, sleeves, hemline and chapel length train were enhanced with matching lace. Her candlelight veil of illusion was held in place by a lace caplet. She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, carnations and baby's breath centered with a white orchid.

Maid of honor was Susan Lynn Bixler, Pensacola, Fla. Bridesmaids were Diane Indest, New Orleans, sister of the groom and Claudia Ladner, Pearlinton, sister of the bride. They wore floor length dotted forest green crepe dresses and carried a single poinsettia.

Drouet LeBlanc, Baton Rouge, uncle of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were William Bourgeois and Paul Hart, both of New Orleans. Jeff Balus, Mississippi City, cousin of the bride, served as usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. The bride's table, overlaid with a lace cloth over green satin, was centered with a five tiered cake trimmed in candlelight spun sugar roses.

The mother of the bride wore a rust knit A-line dress with black accessories and an offwhite glamelia corsage. The mother of the groom chose a floor length burnt orange crepe dress with matching accessories and a glamelia corsage.

For her traveling outfit the bride wore a maroon and beige pantsuit, matching accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in New Orleans where the groom is attending the University of New Orleans.

When special recipes for egg nog, cakes, pies and cookies are pulled from the back of the files for holiday food preparation, it's time to give serious thought to the kind of eggs you buy.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) says that

Chapman on list

Russell W. Chapman, Jr. has been named to the President's list at the University of Southern Mississippi for the fall quarter, 1974-75.

To be eligible for the President's list a student must maintain a 4.0 grade point average for a minimum study load of 10 semester hours.

Mr. Chapman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Chapman Sr., 230 Felicity St., Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Mrs. Duke presented garden award

Lakeshore Garden Club held its annual Christmas party December 19 at Ramada Inn, Waveland.

Mrs. H.W. Duke received the annual award, a silver bowl, for the member who accumulated the most points during the year. Others receiving awards were Mrs. Kirkland Rheams and Mrs. A.M. Thomas. The door prize, a Christmas centerpiece, went to Mrs. J. C. Goodloe. A brief business session was conducted by Mrs. William Richardson, Club president.

Mesdames Anna Mae Rapoli, Jeanne Dumestre and Alvin Ladner were guests of the group.

The date for the January meeting will be announced later.

if shell eggs are to be used in uncooked or lightly cooked dishes, such as egg nogs and meringues, it is important to use only fresh, odor-free eggs, with clean, sound shells.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) says you may also want to consider quality when you buy eggs. As guides to quality, USDA has three consumer grades for eggs, U. S. Grade AA (or Fresh Fancy), A and B.

The official U. S. Grade shield on an egg carton tells the consumer that the eggs have been graded for quality and size under federal-state supervision. AMS provides the grading service on a voluntary basis to those who request it and pay a fee for it.

Higher quality eggs will have thick whites and high, firm yolks. Lower quality eggs generally have thin whites and flat yolks.

The higher quality eggs — AA or Fresh Fancy and A — are ideal for all purposes but are better than lower quality eggs for frying or poaching, where appearance is important. Lower quality eggs are fine for baking or for use in other situations where the appearance of the egg doesn't matter.

When buying eggs, AMS officials say that the grade

Q. My Dad's always paid for my car insurance and I guess I've always taken things like that for granted. Now that I'm paying for my own, my interest in auto insurance knows no bounds. Just what I'm paying for and how am I protected?

A. A good question. Actual-ly, there are five types of coverage to protect you from financial loss.

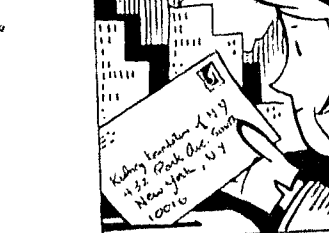

Liability Insurance: Protects you against loss caused by damage to others or their property. If you have caused an accident and are judged to be at fault, your liability insurance covers this.

Collision Insurance: Protects you against loss when your car hits another car or object. It covers only the car, and losses are subject to the deductible amount which is stated in your policy.

Comprehensive Insurance: Protects you against loss caused by other sources other than collision, depreciation and normal wear and tear. It covers fire, theft, hail, storm, vandalism and glass breakage.

Medical Payments: Medical coverage will take care of medical expenses for all persons injured in your automobile without regard to fault, up to the limits specified in the policy.

Uninsured Motorist: Protects you and your passengers in the event of bodily injury caused by an uninsured, financially irresponsible or hit-and-run driver. It does not pay for damage to your car. Your collision coverage takes care of that.

Thousands of lives every year are lost because there aren't enough donors of kid-neys or other organs. A do-nated organ, successfully trans-planted, is literally the gift of life. For more information write to Kidney Foundation of NY, 432 Park Ave. South, New York, N.Y. 10016.

A CHANGING WORLD There is hope for young people

By JOHN PINKERMAN
Editor,
Copley News Service
PRINCETON, N.J. —
There is a slow but mostly healthy change in attitude among students on American college and university campuses in the wake of the resolution of the Watergate national scandals.

This, at least, is the view of one of the nation's foremost educators, a man with the good fortune to do his "educating" on the beautiful and relatively placid campus of 4,400 undergraduates at 228-year-old Princeton University.

The man in question is Dr. Sheldon Hackney, an historian of global reputation and one who has the eyes and the ears of the students in his position as provost, chief deputy to University President William G. Bowen. Hackney set forth his views on student attitudes, interests and frustrations during a breakfast interview at the Revolutionary War era Nassau Inn here.

Some of his observations will be good news to those who have faith in the young people of America and will be surprising news to those skeptics who have given up on the current intercollegiate generation.

"Oh, they still show more cynicism than I would like," 40-year-old Hackney said with just a trace of a southern accent dating back to his Alabama birth. "They want more openness and they want more honesty."

"Their earlier suspicions (in the Richard Nixon days) of the presidency as a devious institution spilled over to all national institutions, but Watergate isn't the end of everything."

"They are not despairing, in my opinion; in fact there are some encouraging signs, not just in the tranquility of serious study, but everywhere else too. The students slowly are beginning to believe again that politics and participation in national affairs can be a creative and very fulfilling enterprise. It would be nice if even more of them would discover this and contribute to it."

As one considered unexcelled in knowledge of many aspects of American history and one who also has daily "one-to-one" communication with all social levels of college students, Hackney's perspective would seem to be of unique value — he knows the traditions and he knows today's "real world." And, he is cautious.

"There are several sides to this business of student attitudes and their evolutions," he said. "It is quiet here and the students are working very hard, most of them. They are very interested in their education, particularly the pre-medical and pre-law students; registrations are up in those fields. This concentration in our most helpful atmosphere here is good in many ways."

"They have recognized, and this may surprise you considering their behavior in the last few years (Vietnam protests, charges of establishment 'materialism'), that there is real economic value in their studies — they are aware of the country's shaky economic situation just as you are, and this is making them what I call vocationally-oriented — a turn to materialism, if you insist."

Surprisingly to some, perhaps, Hackney is not sure this is a good thing. "There can be something unfortunate about this stress on working solely toward jobs," he said. "This is a university where a liberal arts education is a major goal; where we try to teach men and women to think, the business of simply earning a living. What we are seeing is a strong turnaround since the anti-war movement."

The Berkeley type anti-war protests seem gone, Hackney said. Student protest energies have receded in favor of a course they hope will bring changes as they work within the system. "There is much introspection going on," he said. "They're looking at themselves and some even dread the activities that had been part of their lives in the past."

This doesn't mean American young people have gone completely passive. "Even though they have become a bit material-oriented, they still are interested in social improvement," Hackney said. "They are interested in the environment and in all communal social issues. Mostly, they seek more openness, more fairness."

"On the other hand, they are showing more tolerance of others than they once did, particularly tolerance of opposition points of view — perhaps not enough tolerance, but more than before."

Smith leading Stanislaus cagers

Team statistics released for St. Stanislaus this week show Robert Smith leading the Rockachaws in field goal percentage and free throw percentage. Smith has scored a total of 228 points in the Rockachaws 11 games for a 20.7 point average. He has hit 96 of 158 field goal attempts for a 60 percent average. He is also leading the Rockachaws in assists with 52 and steals with 61. Rockachaw Will Marler is leading his Stanislaus teammates in rebounds with 135 for an average of 12 per game. Marler is second in field goal percentage with 62 field goals of 106 attempts (58 percent). He has 148 total points. Paul Brown is second in rebounds and second in steals for the Rockachaws with 91 rebounds and 22 steals. Team totals for the Rockachaws show 742 points scored against opponents for a 67.4 average per game compared to 579 points scored against the Rockachaws for a 52.6 average per game. The Rocks have hit 301 field goals out of 588 attempts for a team percentage of 51 percent. On free throws, the Rocks are shooting 62 percent. The Rock's record is 8-3.

Lost birth certificate? benefits still available

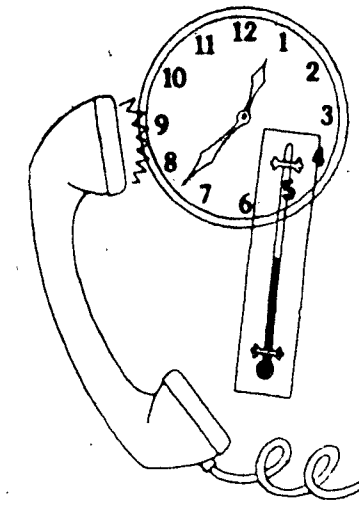

Don't let a lost birth certificate or marriage license deter you from seeking benefits, the Veterans Administration Center, Assistant Director for the Regional Office Merlyn J. Cook, today advised eligible veterans, dependents and survivors. Cook said less formal proof of marriage and birth have been acceptable since 1971 when this information is needed to establish claims for bigger checks. Formerly the VA required all statements of marriages and births to be supported by formalized documentary evidence, he noted.

Cook also pointed out a veteran's or widow's and orphaned children provided neither he nor his wife has been married before and VA has no contradictory information on file.

A certified statement also is acceptable regarding birth of a child of a veteran's marriage and as proof of age and relationship.
